Chocoholics rejoice. There's no need to head to Philadelphia, New York or the Back Bay to enjoy delicious chocolate with a signature Max Brenner ceramic utensil. It's now just an Amazon delivery away.

For those who haven't been lucky enough to partake of the great atmosphere and aroma of a Max Brenner Chocolate Bar, it's a unique and rewarding treat. There's actually 'real' food on the menu and even alcoholic drinks -- yes, of course there's a chocolate martini -- but the experience is all about the chocolate. And just as there are many signature desserts and goodies, Brenner also has special ceramicware for the occasion.

The Fondue Tower is sure to be a winner at home, whether you're trying to impress a date or give the family an alternative to store-bought cookies and cakes for dessert. The tower has three ceramic sections: one to house a tea light, one for hot water and the top one for chocolate morsels -- Brenner's milk chocolate caibos work perfectly, of course.

The tower - as well as the signature hot chocolate Hug Mug and milkshake cup - can also be purchased in the Boston store at 745 Boylston Street. Check out the website for hours and additional information.
