8 Ways To Celebrate World Chocolate Day

July 7 is World Chocolate Day—get into the spirit in the sweetest way with these eight yummy NYC chocolate picks

By Ben Berk

In early July, there is a day that is celebrated, not just in America, but the world over. Everyone looks forward to it, and what it represents. Of course, the day is July 7, World Chocolate Day. Everyone's favorite confection can be found all over the world, and New York City is no exception. Here are a few places in the Big Apple where you can celebrate World Chocolate Day with the whole family!

Max Brenner: Chocolate by the bald man is perfect for a mid-summer sweet. Max Brenner in Union Square features a chocolate bar which includes cookies, fondue and milkshakes to satisfy any chocolate connoisseur. Try their Hug Mug, where the hot chocolate experience includes feeling the warmth spread through your hands, or their Chocolate Pizza, which has milk and dark chocolate, roasted marshmallows and melted peanut butter. Max Brenner is a New York classic, and can fulfill all your chocolatey desires. maxbrenner.com
